ABSTRACT

The development of information and communication technology in the era of digitalization has made the Islamic banking industry in Indonesia competitive in developing innovations in both products and services. One form of adoption of information technology systems in banking digitization is mobile banking applications. With the increasingly rapid use of mobile banking as a form of banking digitization today, many banks continue to compete to improve the features they have, one of which is BSB Mobile Banking which is a service which is provided by Bank Sumsel Babel to carry out various banking transactions through various features on smartphones.

Based on this, this research is aimed at finding out the influence of Perceived credibility, convenience and ease of use on the decision to use BSB Mobile Banking with Attitude Towards Using as an intervening variable for students receiving KIP College scholarships at UIN Raden Fatah Palembang. This research was carried out using a quantitative approach with primary data in the form of respondents' answers obtained through distributing questionnaires to 110 samples who were students who received KIP Lecture scholarships at UIN Raden Fatah Palembang who used BSB Mobile Banking.

The results of this research show that the variables Perceived credibility, convenience and ease of use have no direct influence on the decision to use BSB Mobile Banking, the variable Attitude Towards Using has a positive and significant influence on the decision to use, Perceived credibility, convenience and ease of use have a positive and significant influence on Attitude Towards Using, as well as Perceived credibility, convenience and ease of use also have a positive and significant influence on the decision to use BSB Mobile Banking, mediated by the Attitude Towards Using variable as an intervening variable for students who receive KIP scholarships at UIN Raden Fatah Palembang who use BSB Mobile Banking.
